Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons [illegible] female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of [illegible] from virus absorbed into the system [illegible] pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians [illegible] tend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, so that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse, [illegible] practiced by the youth of both sexes to an [illegible] unlimited extent producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained should apply immediately, either in person or by letter and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

Married Men,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument binding him to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Cured at Home.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. G [illegible] stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded free from damage and curiosity to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin in registered letter through the Post office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who with bogus sworn to certificates [illegible] the unwary. Some of the self styled doctors whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers [illegible] carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. [illegible] way to avoid imposition is to make [illegible] it will cost you nothing, and may save you [illegible] for an advertising physician [illegible] out of ten are bogus, there is no safety [illegible] any of them until you know who and what they are.

SHIPWRECK AND STARVATION

SUFFERINGS OF THE CREW OF THE BARK [illegible]

How many and various are the perils of the brave fellows who go down to the sea in ships [illegible] cannot add a suggestion to the [illegible] notless [illegible] fiction. In February last the bark [illegible] of Greenock was on a voyage from [illegible] to Bombay, coal laden, when she took fire from spontaneous combustion. The crew [illegible] boats heading for the Maldive [illegible] The boats kept company for three days, when a separation was agreed upon, because the current offered such obstacles to their holding together. The master in the [illegible] boat headed for Cochin; the mate took the [illegible] the second mate, and hero of this narrative, with four of the crew, had the pinnace. Both mates continued their course to the Maldives, but after a time Webster's boat was in [illegible] by a heavy sea and unable to keep up with [illegible] soon lost sight of her. Up to the 9th of March the pinnace was kept working to windward. Then the water and provisions gave out and far from land the crew were threatened with the horrors of thirst and hunger, which must end, if no providential aid came, in the awful death which comes of starvation. In their extremity the crew cast [illegible] determine who should die that the [illegible] might live. The lot [illegible] fell to Webster, who had been sleeping during the awful lottery, was aroused and saved the [illegible] life. Then when Webster slept again the [illegible] determined to kill him, but the grateful [illegible] whom he had saved thwarted the plan by [illegible] warning the intended victim. On the next day with a gun folded in his arms Webster dropped off to sleep, but was [illegible] by the struggling for the possession of the firearm which was to be used for the taking of his life. Three days were thus passed without nourishment, when one of the men [illegible] attempted to sink the boat. Webster prevented. Two days passed wearily [illegible] when the [illegible] his threat to sink the pinnace or trying to kill the [illegible] Webster [illegible] shot gun [illegible] and if the [illegible] had not stopped would have taken his life. Putting [illegible] upon the gun Webster found [illegible] a bird flying over the boat. He [illegible] and the greedy crew made short [illegible] bones, feathers and all. For five [illegible] the crew just kept alive by eating [illegible] which attached themselves to the [illegible] of the boat. On the sixth day [illegible] became delirious. One fell into [illegible] the boat exhausted; another [illegible] with an iron [illegible] the blood gush [illegible] the wounds was caught by the other [illegible] vessel and eagerly drank. Then [illegible] Webster and the boy doing [illegible] watches which the other had [illegible] abandoned. It appears that the firm had been doing a large California trade and had dispatched to San Francisco as agent a young man who had its entire confidence. Last week Posnanski received information that all was not altogether right in California, and he sent a member of the firm to investigate the agent's affairs. THE CHILD ABDUCTION.

[illegible] July [illegible].—Since [illegible] the concerning the designs of the kidnappers of little Charley Ross [illegible] at the [illegible] in the [illegible] twenty days the [illegible] the first [illegible] letters [illegible] the [illegible] Thursday [illegible] the plan [illegible] the kidnappers agree to deliver the child and accept the ransom of $20,000. The outline of this plan, not a fancy sketch but a full copy which the kidnappers themselves made, and which subsequent disclosures will prove to be strictly true. It came to your correspondent in the most direct way, and is stated exclusively here for the first time.

THE PLOT.

The place selected by the kidnappers for their negotiations is a lonely bridge in the extreme northern portion of the county, and the [illegible] which the business is to be transacted [illegible] is set down [illegible] night. The bridge is surrounded on all sides by a flat and open country, so that one standing upon its abutment could witness an approach from any direction. The plan states that Mr. Ross must come to this bridge with the money. While en route for the designated point and before he arrives at it he will be met by a man who will step before him and say,

"Good morning, sir."

To this Mr. Ross must render an amicable reply, and then pass on towards the bridge. Before he reaches the bridge a second man will approach him in the same manner as the first and say,

"Mr. Ross, how do you do?"

To this Mr. Ross must also render an appropriate reply, when he will reach the bridge and there meet a third man, who will ask the following question:

"Mr. Ross, have you got that?"

After Mr. Ross has paid the money there will be a slight delay, but in a few minutes he is promised that his little one, Charlie, will be delivered over.

CONDITIONS OF THE [illegible]

The robbers evade all possibility of detection by the following conditions: The three will be armed and in disguise. If Mr. Ross does not come alone, or if a single soul is seen lurking anywhere in the neighborhood, the kidnappers will fail to keep their appointment. The bridge stands all by itself. Three different roads intersect near its site, and the country being open and level is the [illegible] the confederates stationed out along the different roads can see Mr. Ross for a long distance off and know whether he came alone or with some one else. Moreover, Mr. Ross will be watched from the time he leaves the city until the time he is accosted by the first man, and any attempt to assemble a posse of citizens or police near the bridge would be sure to be seen by the kidnappers, who, of course, the police men do not know.

No sooner had their plan been [illegible] from the human thieves to the parent than consultations were held by the police and by private citizens directly interested in the [illegible] in order to devise some means of catching the scoundrels in their own trick and thus save the ransom and likewise secure the child. Hundreds of plans were proposed. The energy and brain of the entire detective force were bent toward this one purpose, but all plans are sure to fail. In case the father concludes to accept the terms of the blackmailers they are as sure of getting the money without arrest as they are sure of keeping the child without detection in case the terms are not complied with. It may appear a simple thing to entrap the kidnappers while consummating their designs, but if any one will read the above carefully he will see that the condition of the country, the command which the plotters enjoy over all the roads, the opportunity they have to watch every movement which either Mr. Ross or the police may make between now and the time the former may consent to their demands, and the facilities they may possess of studying every step which the father may take after he sets out upon his solitary journey to the bridge, all [illegible] the [illegible] of this apparently simply constructed plan and the impossibility of entrapping the villains [illegible] carry [illegible] it out.

The detectives have [illegible] without their [illegible] and called in the advice of prominent men in order to seek someone to crush the plot. Among these may be mentioned Mr. McKean, of the Public Ledger, and District Attorney William F. Mann. As stated above a hundred plans have been proposed, but all of them proved wanting. It was proposed to secretly place men about the bridge, to surround the roads at points distant from the bridge by armed columns of citizens, and it has been proposed to do a thousand other things, each one of which the simple conditions of the scoundrel's scheme render wholly and utterly impossible.

The upshot of the matter is fully shown in the letter which the kidnappers sent to the father at the close of last week, of which brief mention was made in the Herald of to-day. [illegible] through the [illegible] to receive any answer to this plan from the father the thieves sent a communication of the [illegible]

THE [illegible]

The [illegible] well [illegible] fully looked after. The parties had avoided [illegible] for twenty days [illegible] They [illegible] The parties were a[illegible] the father and were [illegible] of the [illegible] police and that unless the demand made was complied with they would [illegible] put the child away; that they knew their business and that their terms must be met.

Such in brief was the [illegible] their [illegible] while the [illegible] have been trying to [illegible] them they have regularly followed [illegible] operations and movements of the authorities.

[illegible] shows itself clearly in [illegible] time [illegible] between the hours the letter [illegible] the time they have been received. For instance, a letter [illegible] the kidnappers [illegible] the father [illegible] showing conclusively [illegible] the communication must needs be dropped [illegible] near by, showing conclusively [illegible] that in [illegible] concealment [illegible] the way [illegible] the kidnappers are moving in the most [illegible]

DASTARDLY WORK.

At [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning Robert S. Patterson and James A. Steele, [illegible] Davidson county, respectively, entered the editorial room of the [illegible] the former holding in his hand a copy of yesterday's issue of this paper, which he presented to the city editor, Mr. John [illegible] Bell, with the inquiry:

"Did you write this article?"

Mr. Bell: "No. I wrote it."

[illegible] you know [illegible] large writing [illegible]

When the question was asked Mr. Bell was [illegible] chair tilted back and his feet upon a table. Before he could [illegible] Patterson struck him behind the [illegible] and felled him to the floor. It is not a hard matter to hit and kick a man when he is down. This the cowardly ruffian did until Mr. Bell, bruised and bloody, was all but insensible from his injuries.

In the meantime another member of our editorial staff had left his seat and was hastening to Mr. Bell's assistance. He was promptly met by Steele, who presented a revolver at his head and threatened to shoot him if he moved a step further.

After Patterson had gotten through his brutal job he and the hired blackguard who had accompanied him withdrew from the room, Patterson remarking: "If you use my name again we'll come down to-morrow and clean your office out."

No person in Nashville is more quiet and inoffensive in his habits than Mr. Bell. He weighs perhaps 130 pounds, certainly not over 135. Neither he nor his associate was armed. Patterson is a man of burly frame, stout as an ox and a recognized bully. His aider and abettor in the outrage, Steele, is a tale [illegible] bord [illegible] fellow, with all the ferocious instincts of the bulldog, whose company he prefers to that of decent men. As intimated above, both are officers elected by the people of Davidson county—the one to guard offenders, not one whit worse than himself, the other to conserve the peace which he assisted yesterday to break in so disgraceful a manner.—Nashville Union.

A PEN PORTRAIT.

He dresses in black. His clothes are well made and fit him perfectly. His only jewelry consists of a plain gold watch worth about $100, which is seldom disturbed from its place in his vest pocket. He loathes all [illegible] personal adornments. Three small, plain, linen covered buttons appear on his shirt bosom. No watch-chain is visible. He wears a black beaver hat, which weighs half a pound less than the heavy, [illegible] stove-pipe fashion ordains shall be worn this summer. His hair, of a reddish gray, is neatly dressed at all times. His beard, which is more [illegible] with gray than his hair, is short and trimmed regularly so as to be kept at the same length all the year round. Where a cumbersome mustache ought to be a hair is never permitted to attain more than a day's growth. He is of a slender, though compact physique. His complexion is ruddy and bespeaks the best of health. He always looks as if he had just left the toilet table. This man is seventy four years of age. In conversation his keen blue eyes are never for an instant taken off yours. His face bears the impress of prudence, discretion, self-confidence, a calmness impossible to ruffle, and above all, of honesty and truthfulness. He never speaks loud enough to be heard ten steps from where he stands. Eavesdroppers cannot catch even the sound of his voice. He shakes hands with you cordially, may even warmly. He is courtesy and politeness itself. His conversation is always couched in the refined language of the educated gentleman. He uses no slang. He is witty, and at times vivacious. He is no teetotaler. He drinks only at meal hours. His favorite wines are Johannisberg, from Prince Metternich's private vineyard, the like of which is not easily found in this country. He is fond of sherry and Madeira. His wine cellar contains probably the choicest collection of wines in America. This man's wealth is estimated at one hundred millions, made by him [illegible] in New York city. He has no children. He has not a single known relative on the face of the earth. He is the last of his race. This is A. T. Stewart.—[illegible]

THE BATHING DRESS.

A correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal, writing from Long Branch, remarks:

A bathing dress possesses the peculiar property of transforming the finest looking man into an idiot, and the most beautiful woman into a model for the Witch of Endor. A fellow gets into a shirt and trousers too short for a boy of 12, and crosses gingerly the beach to the ocean, presenting in his transit the appearance of a newly discovered animal composed principally of toes and conscious all the time that he is exhaustless food for mirth to the well dressed cynics on the bank. I entered into conversation with the nautical dispenser of bathing dresses, and sat down in his hut, which looked like a pawnbroker's shop for scarecrows, where the pledges were never by any possible chance redeemed. In a statistical conversation I elicited the fact that the receipts of the establishment for the loan of Neptune's shirt and breeches had run as high as $140 a day, an amount which I estimated to be largely above the value of the entire stock in trade. Sea bathing is a delightful and healthy occupation and something that I could look at for hours. It is not always a refuge for boors. A [illegible] gentleman looking for peace during the [illegible] was attacked this morning by an [illegible] as the two [illegible] in harmony together on the top of a wave, and solicited the [illegible] to have his [illegible] "

THE BEECHER-TILTON CASE.

BROOKLYN, August 1.—The Beecher-Tilton controversy [illegible] to a [illegible] ton. It has now reached a point where a single day may bring [illegible] public opinion [illegible] with interested parties lately published [illegible] The public awaits with anxious suspense the testimony of Moulton, but his whereabouts is unknown, and so much secrecy attaches to his movements that it [illegible] considered doubtful whether he intends to speak the words which shall dispel the mystery of the scandal.

It is hinted by Moulton's friends that if he testifies he will adhere to the policy indicated in his recent speech before the Committee, to speak the whole truth, but at the same time he does not believe that simply the curiosity of the world or of the Committee ought to be gratified by a recitation of the facts in possession in confidence. He prefers that the principals should settle it themselves.

ELIZABETH CADY STANTON.

In conversation yesterday said she was ready to appear before a Court of Justice and swear to her statement that Tilton told her and Mrs. Bullard of his wife's infidelities. Mrs. Stanton further said she firmly believes Miss Anthony's story of Mrs. Tilton's confession. She admitted, however, that Tilton afterward denied the confession he made. She said she did not like to strike a blow at a woman, but when it came to the woman suffrage movement and Beecher she prefers to let him kick the beam even if he take one woman with him.

Beecher went to Peekskill to-day to spend Sunday, accompanied by a few members of Plymouth Church. It is understood that he preaches there to-morrow.

Miss Anthony is reported as expressing a regret that either her statement or Mrs. Stanton's were made public; they should have slept the sleep of silence. She thinks Mrs. Stanton got things somewhat mixed.

TROUBLE BEGINNING TO TELL ON TILTON.

Trouble and anxiety begin to tell on Tilton. It is said he looks ten years older within a year.

It is rumored that the Investigating Committee intend to prosecute and arrest some half a dozen persons on a charge of conspiracy against Beecher.

MR. BEECHER'S [illegible] PROVES THAT TILTON IS INSANE.

The Eagle presents a rather remarkable statement bearing on inquiry into Tilton's mental condition. It says his parents and uncles live in Keyport and are considered queer, eccentric hypochondriacs. One is undoubtedly insane, and the daughter of another uncle has been insane for years. George Tilton, Theodore's cousin, and his half sister Mary are both insane, the latter through religion. Theodore's mother and father were both Tiltons, being second cousins. Edgar, Theodore's brother, died insane. Theodore's father was "queer." From extensive inquiries the Eagle deduces that Tilton's family on both sides are saturated with insanity. It further alleges that Theodore has shown symptoms of insanity for twelve years past; he has been unable to sleep without being read to for several hours, has been subject to pains in the head and has indulged in various eccentricities. The Eagle has the opinion of experts that Tilton is insane.

BEECHER'S LAWYERS SANGUINE.

Beecher's lawyers are confident that when his statement, now in course of preparation, is presented there will be nothing left of the scandal, and that he will be acquitted. The statement will take up and dispose of the charges.

THE [illegible] WOODHULL.

The snubbing administered by the committee to Woodhull & Co. last evening aroused the ire of those parties, and they will not leave for Europe immediately as they had intended, but will stay, probably, to finish their denunciations and publish their rejected testimony.

BROOKLYN, July 31.—Tilton's friends deny the truth of the statements which have been published charging him with unkindness to his wife and with refusing to let her take anything from the house, as he is reported to have done on a recent occasion.

MRS. TILTON CHANGES HER BASE.

The Argus to-day says it is understood that Mrs. Tilton's speech before the Committee of Investigation was a most beautiful, touching and earnest defense of her husband's character. Some members of the Committee were affected to tears by her eloquent plea for justice to Tilton. She urged that he has been misjudged in many respects, and that the action of Plymouth Church in dropping his name from its roll was a terrible wrong.

THE INSANITY DODGE.

The Daily Union this afternoon publishes an interview with Dr. McDonald, Superintendent of the Kings county insane asylum, in which the latter stated that Mr. Tilton's brother had been an insane patient in that asylum and had died there while still insane several years ago.

BEECHER'S STATEMENT

Is now complete and he only awaits the invitation of the Committee to submit it. The Committee, however, is indisposed to call on Beecher before hearing Moulton's testimony. Persons who have seen Beecher's statement speak of it as a startling and exhaustive document. Personally Beecher looks as fresh and strong as his friends could wish. The scandal does not appear to weigh as heavily on his mind as formerly.

AN INTERVIEW WITH DR. BACON.

The Eagle this afternoon publishes an interview with Dr. Leonard Bacon. The latter says his indignation centres on Moulton for remaining silent when one word from him would have settled Beecher's guilt or innocence. Bacon views the work of the present Investigating Committee as an ex parte proceeding, and thinks for that reason their verdict will not be satisfactory; the Committee is a very poor substitute for legal proceeding. Dr. Bacon disclaimed any intention at personality in his letter which offended Tilton and provoked his remarkable statement. Nothing was further from his mind than calling him or any individual a knave or dog.

MOULTON AS DEEP IN THE MUD AS ANY OF THE REST.

Shearman this afternoon said that his opinion of Moulton's reason for holding back from testifying was not that his testimony would damage either of his friends, Beecher and Tilton, but rather that Moulton himself has everything to lose and is indisposed to talk or testify. Shearman says he is confident that Moulton has no testimony to give that will hurt Beecher; it is for his own interest that he does not speak. Shearman declined to explain further. He said, however, that he knew what Moulton's testimony is, and he wished he would speak.

THE CONGRESSIONAL REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE'S ADDRESS.

"What the Republican party has accomplished" is a sentence placed conspicuously at the head of the Republican address to the people of the United States. But this kind of molasses will not now attract a single fly.—New Bedford Mercury (Rep.)

The Congressional Republican address was ill-considered and crudely expressed, and will have no possible weight with the Republican party. It may possibly represent the views of Senator Logan and a few other filibustering politicians who aspire to leadership, but who ought to be content to follow.—Boston Journal (Rep.)

Bret Harte's last story, "John Oakhurst," was written in a single night. The author sketched the outline of the story in his head as he was sitting one afternoon in Washington square. After dinner he went to work writing it out and got through before breakfast the next morning. The price paid him by the New York Times for this production is said to have been $500.

W. A. McPherson, of Douglas county, has been appointed a Notary Public.

Umpqua Grange initiated thirty members in the third degree at its last meeting.

The Willamette Woolen Manufacturing Co. finished and shipped $2,000 worth of goods last month.

Over 100 hands are employed in the Salem woolen factory, and the pay rolls of last month foot up over $4,000.

Hay is sold at five dollars a ton in the meadow in Douglas county. Livery stable men are storing away their winter supply.

Fine salmon trout are brought into the Roseburg market from the fisheries at the North and South Umpqua junction.

A burning ash hopper gave Wm. Armstrong, of South Salem, a scare on Monday last. His house had a narrow escape from fire.

The new town of Oakland presents an inviting appearance to the traveler, and is really one of the neatest little towns in the State.

The big work done by a threshing machine near Salem was 1,110 bushels in ten hours. We make the correction that somebody may beat it.

Gen. Hardie visited Roseburg a few days ago collecting Modoc War claims. He met with little difficulty in collecting vouchers for all the claims in this part of the country.

The Board of Capitol Commissioners adjourned last Tuesday morning until Monday, the 7th of November next. Both Mr. Kluppel and Mr. Pristow left for their homes in Southern Oregon.

Burglars tried to break into the residence of Mr. J. H. Brown last Monday night, but he was awake and frightened them away by falling over a chair, turning four somersaults and making a general racket.

Thomas Clark's horses ran off with his buggy and girl, at Oakland. Thomas knowingly gathered the girl and rolled out, the fall injuring them somewhat, but it was a lucky escape. The buggy went to pot.

A. J. Burnett and Dr. Hoover started last Thursday for Klamath Indian Agency with a drove of three hundred head of cattle. They are stock cattle purchased by the Government for the Indians on the reservation.

A fire broke out upon Mr. Hall's ranch near Wilhoit's Soda Springs, Clackamas county, last Friday evening, doing considerable damage. About 10,000 rails were burned. The fire was fortunately checked before it reached any of the buildings upon the place.

To find a farm of 178.36 acres of prairie and excellent timber, situated without an owner on the bank of the Wallamet river below Salem eight miles, would seem to be a strange occurrence. But just such a piece of school land was discovered lately, and was purchased by Dan Wagnon at $1 25 per acre, worth more than ten times that price.

The Salem Record has had news from Wheatland. It says: "We receive information of a man who stood very high in popular estimation, owned valuable property, and was also a deacon in the Church in that same vicinity, who recently found it convenient to make a sudden departure for parts unknown, having been the ruin of a young girl who had betrayed his villainy after being betrayed by him. But the most terrible story of all is this: That a respectable young girl, who had been working in a family near Wheatland, having completed her stay, started home by a by path, through the woods one morning lately, and in the evening was found insensible and had evidently been seized, overpowered and outraged, and left unconscious. She only remembered that somebody seized her from behind, and appearances indicate that she was stupefied by the use of drugs to enable the cowardly scoundrel to accomplish his infamous purpose."

The Record says: "More than twenty years ago the wife of Gov. Gaines was killed by accident on Clatsop Plains, and her remains rest in the Odd Fellows cemetery near Salem. The grave is marked by a marble slab that rests on a brick foundation, and the score of years since then have decomposed the masonry and left the grave an unsightly ruin. The Gaines family are mostly removed from Oregon, and no one lives near to notice and repair the mother's grave. Secretary Chadwick has taken notice of it and was intending to have the repairs made by the State, if the Legislature would consent, but his friendly interest has been superseded by the liberality of an old time friend of Governor Gaines, E. S. Kearney, of Washington Territory, visiting the grave-yard yesterday, saw the ruin and gave orders through O. A. Brown, to have it repaired at his expense, and the work is already done. It was a very kindly and considerate act and bespeaks a true hearted man."

THE TERRITORIES.

John Early, of Boise, has sold his fine stallion Rival for $600.

The latest advices from the new mines on the Cache la Poudre, Colorado, announce the finding of silver ore which assays $2,000 to the ton.

A gang of eight Indians attacked an emigrant train near Medicine Bow on the Laramie plains a week before last, but were repulsed with the loss of one redskin.

The Olympia Courier learns that an infant in an advanced stage of decomposition was found on Monday boxed up, floating on the water in the bay below Marshville bridge.

Small parties of Indians, supposed to be Cheyennes, have been hanging around the settlements on the Platte, east of Evans, for a week or two past, saying that they were watching for the Utes.

A letter from Park City, Utah, dated July 28th, says: "The comet, the d—l, or some other unknown cause has been giving us a succession of the most terrific thunder storms ever witnessed in this region, for the last ten days. Storm has succeeded storm day and night, upon a scale of grandeur which must be seen to be realized. Imagine yourself nine thousand feet above sea level, with the clouds all around you, flashing lurid light and belching thunder that shakes the hills, and only approached by the heavy artillery of modern invention."

Pueblo has begun work on the Pueblo and Salt Lake Railroad, which is to connect that town with the Arkansas valley road at Las Animas, giving direct eastern communication via the Kansas Pacific. The Chieftain says the enterprise will be continued without cessation until completed, which we trust will be the case. The plucky and determined manner in which the Pueblo ites have taken hold of the work is a certain indication of success. That's the way Denver built the Denver Pacific, and the way the Olympians will build the Tenino road.

The Albuquerque Review figures out a profit of $82,092 on an investment of $7,500 in sheep for five years, in New Mexico, after making allowance for all losses and expenses. Starting with a flock of 5,000 at $1 50 per head, he increased it to 48,784 at the end of five years, worth $2 per head—being an increased value on account of grading. Besides this there is the yield in wool, which the first year will average but a pound and a half each for the ewes, the rams will average six pounds to the fleece, which may be valued at twenty cents per pound on the grounds. The wool crop alone will pay all the expenses of herding the sheep, extra assistance at lambing time, and the proprietor's family.

The Boise Statesman of August 1st says: "It appears that the owners of the Poorman mine, something over a year ago, leased the right to prospect and work a portion of this mine to a company of miners. After considerable prospecting they found a good body of ore within the limits assigned them. The owners of the mine being desirous of working the mine more successfully at some future time, commenced putting up hoisting works or buildings for that purpose, and also sinking a shaft, which work is represented as over the body of ore struck by the miners who have the lease. One day this week, while the hands on the hoisting works were away, the miners put three men on the hoisting work grounds armed with Henry rifles, and on the return of the company's workmen they were forbidden possession and not allowed to go on with their work. The miners were arrested, but they put on other men and held the ground from the company. They are having an examination before a Justice's court, which proceedings make a good deal of talk and not a little excitement."

WEAK LUNGS ARE CAREFULLY RACKED, and the general strength gradually wasted by a persistent, deep seated Cough, which Dr. Jayne's Expectorant may be relied on to cure. You will derive certain benefit also, if troubled with either Asthma or Bronchitis.

THURSDAY MORNING AUGUST 6 1874

THE STOCK SWINDLE AS ILLUSTRATED IN CALIFORNIA

The San Francisco Bulletin in arguing the question of the regulation of freights on railways by law presents some figures in relation to the Central Pacific railway, which illustrate the manner of exaggerating the costs of railway building. By drawing from the reports of the company's own offices which the railway authorities are estopped to deny the Bulletin makes a case that it will be beyond the power of the railway rings to controvert successfully. We quote at length from the Bulletin because the facts it presents are exactly to the point in the controversy going on all over the country between the people and the railway power. The stock fraud of which we have made frequent mention heretofore, constitutes a conspicuous feature in the Central Pacific swindle and together with the Contract and Finance Company's operations, swell the apparent cost of the road to a figure about $60,000,000 above the actual cost. The Bulletin says:

In the annual reports of the officers of the Central Pacific we have the strongest illustration that is anywhere furnished of the manner in which fictitious capital—upon which it is insisted interest must be paid by the people—is manufactured. The report of the Chief Engineer sets forth that the company has in operation a total of 1,218.93 miles of road. The question now is as to how much it really cost to build and equip these 1,218.93 miles. Upon these figures the people would be willing to pay a fair interest, irrespective of the fact that nearly all the money expended came originally from them in the shape of advances which they will most probably have finally to shoulder together with other subsidies in lands and money. The figures given by the President of the road in his annual report are as follows:

Capital stock authorized	$100,000,000 00
Capital stock subscribed	[illegible]
Capital [illegible] paid in	[illegible]
Of the amount subscribed there is held in trust for the company	[illegible]

INDEBTEDNESS.

The debts of the company are

Funded debt	$54,400,000 00
Less Sinking Fund	1,151,731 70
U. S. Subsidy Bonds	27,885,680 00
Total	$81,133,948 30

Analyzed these figures give the capital invested as follows:

Capital stock subscribed	$62,608,800 00
Debts	54,400,000 00
U. S. Subsidy Bonds	27,885,680 00
Total	$144,894,480 00

The Central Pacific is not paying the interest on the United States Subsidy Bonds but acknowledges its obligation to do so at maturity. We have here therefore a total of $144,894,480 presumably expended in the construction and equipment of 1,218.93—say 1,219—miles of railroad upon which interest is to be paid by the people who patronize the line. As the company professes to be determined to pay the principal and interest of the United States Subsidy Bonds at some future time it is of course now collecting the annual interest and sinking fund from our people. The sum total invested in the road as above shown, is $144,894,480, which may be increased to $182,285,680, for all the capital stock authorized has not been sold by $37,391,200. But taking the former figures as a basis they give an expenditure of $120,000 for every mile of those 1,219 miles of railroad. Does any one in his senses believe that any such amount of money was expended? Is there any individual with a mouth so wide open as to swallow all this? Three fourths of these 1,219 miles of road run over level plains. The ties were cut from the company's lands. There were very few bridges or culverts to build. For hundreds of miles there was little more to do than ballast the road. The work was done by Chinese labor. We do not believe that it can be shown that three-fourths of these 1,219 miles of railroad—say 900 miles—cost a cent more than $20,000 a mile. It will be seen that there is a great difference between $20,000 a mile and $120,000. It is said that the line over the Sierras was expensive. It is also true that the snow sheds entailed a heavy outlay. It is a liberal estimate that a fourth of the road cost $120,000 per mile, but that leaves 900 miles costing not over $20,000 a mile for which we are charged the former enormous figures. There is nothing to be added to them but a couple of millions for land and steamers purchased. The facts appear then, to be as follows:

900 miles of road at $120,000 per mile, Company's figures		$108,000,000
900 miles of road actual cost	$18,000,000
For steamers and property	2,000,000
		20,000,000
Fictitious capital		$88,000,000

By the simple process of subtracting $88,000,000 from $144,894,480 we reach, approximately, the amount of the swindle.

It might be inferred, at first, that this immense sum of nearly $90,000,000 went into the pockets of the Contract and Finance Company—which was the Credit Mobilier under a different name—but such is by no means the fact. It will be observed, that one item of the cost is subscriptions to capital stock, $62,608,800. Does anybody suppose this stock was actually paid in? Surely no one supposes so, who has paid the slightest attention to the subject. They do not build railways often in that manner. It is perfectly safe to say that of this $62,608,800 stock subscribed, there was never paid in $20,000,000. Indeed if ever there was a dollar so contributed to the enterprise it was a dollar more than most of the subsidy roads have raised on their stock. The Central Pacific we are reliably informed is an exceptional case, the stockholders having contributed a fraction of the par value of their stock. Say they put in $20,000,000—doubtless an over estimate—and there is a margin of a little over forty two and a half millions of fictitious values in this one item of stock, leaving about $17,000,000 as the steal of the Contract and Finance arrangement. But when it is proposed to fix by law a tariff of freight charges such as will make the road a benefit to and not an oppression of the people and at the same time produce a fair return upon the capital invested the railway managers have the assurance to insist on counting this fictitious stock as capital invested.

THE DEFAULTING RAILWAYS

Says the San Francisco Bulletin:

The total amount of borrowed money upon which American railways have defaulted during the past fiscal year in paying interest was [illegible]. In the list is one item of possible interest to the people of the Pacific coast, namely the default of the Oregon and California road on $10,[illegible],000. Another default has been made with reference to the Vallejo [illegible] but it has not yet been tabulated at the East. As a general rule the foreign bondholder is safe enough. If his money has been judiciously invested he is sure to get it back. There are few railroads which are not fully worth their bonded debt. The sympathy which we have been called upon to extend to this class of investors is therefore for the most part unneeded. But the case is different where bonds have been taken on railroads that do not exist or have not been acquired or extended. Under such circumstances the foreign bondholders have been swindled just as palpably as if they had been the victims of the pocket-book or any other confidence game by which inexperienced persons are cheated out of their money.

We take exception to this paragraph so far as it relates to the default of the Oregon and California road. We object to being underrated in a matter of this kind and the Bulletin has stated the amount of the bonds on which our road has defaulted $400,000 less than the actual facts in the case. We protest against the injustice. If Oregon has had a railway nabob who has shown the ability to do the German people out of enough money to build a road to California and then to spend it all or pretend to spend it on about half the road she is entitled to the full credit.

THE SHIP-BUILDERS ON RECIPROCITY

The proposition to re-establish free trade with the Dominion is not received with very cordial expressions of favor by the ship-builders of Maine. They are no less hostile to it than Mr Speaker Blaine, whose letter accepting the renomination to Congress has been referred to heretofore. That gentleman either echoed the sentiments of the ship builders or directed their opinions as appears from a circular on the subject of reciprocity, issued through "The Ship-builders and Ship-owners Association of Maine," which presents the reasons that can be urged against the restoration of the treaty in the strongest light of which they are capable of being presented. It is insisted by the Association that the result of the restoration of the treaty would be to place not only the building of sea going vessels, but also the coasting trade in the hands of Canadians, silencing the navy yards of the Atlantic coast. To avert this national disaster is the object the Association have in view in issuing their address. It is urged that the admission of Canadian vessels to registry would be equivalent to a repeal of all our navigation laws, and that American coasters would be idle and grass would grow where is now the tread of our workmen.

The Governor of Maine, in his last message, referred to the condition of the shipbuilding interests of the State, and that branch of business was increasing with great rapidity and promised ere long to reach the old anti-war standard. The tonnage of vessels built in 1873 exceeded that of 1872 by over one hundred per cent. With this handsome start toward retrieving our lost position in shipping, and with the bright prospect of continued increase, the people immediately concerned in the matter naturally feel extremely anxious to have the present state of affairs remain.

THE "PARTY ORGAN"

Among the Republican newspapers of the North, [illegible] none has been more staunch in its Republicanism, and few if any more influential, than the St. Paul Press. Never until now has it shown any disposition to rebel against the rules of partisan politics, and never before, to our recollection, has it declined to support the regular nominee of the Republican Conventions. But the nomination of one of the original salary-grabbers for Congress, against which the Press, in the interest of the people and the party, warned the Convention beforehand, has proved to be the straw that broke the camel's back. The Press does not propose to make any recantations of what it said before the nomination was made, and in the course of its remarks in reply to the Journal which had called in question the political standing of the Press, the editor of the latter takes occasion to defend the position of a "party organ," as that phrase is generally understood and, incidentally, to define the position of the Press, in the following happy style:

A "party organ" it seems exists but for one purpose and that is to support the nomination. In the performance of this plain and simple duty it fulfills the great end of its being and accomplishes its sublime and beautiful destiny.

With the nomination itself it has nothing to do. The office holders will take care of that, and any suggestion from a party organ contrary to their programme is a piece of presumptuous impertinence which is not to be tolerated on any account. But when the nomination is made then the duty of the "party organ" begins. It is in honor bound to bend its knee to the graven image which the official Nebuchadnezzars have set up, whether it be of brass, wood or stone, a Jupiter or a Silenus. Well, the Press is not a party organ, in the sense in which the Journal understands that term. It is a Republican newspaper to be sure, but it is the organ of nobody but its proprietors and does not propose to be.

Mr Halliday, assistant pastor of Plymouth Church entertains some most remarkable notions of the subject of evidence. He attests his strong faith in Mr Beecher and articulates his peculiar theory on the weight of testimony in a conversation with a New York Times reporter: "It would take one hundred Tiltons to shake my faith in Mr Beecher, and if an angel were to come down from Heaven and tell me Mr Beecher was guilty I would not believe it." There is something sublime in Mr H's unfaltering fidelity to his superior—it is sublimely ridiculous.

The first sensible thing Tilton has said since the Beecher tragedy commenced is that mentioned in this morning's dispatches, namely, that he will have nothing further to do with the packed jury called an investigating committee, but will carry his case into the courts. The manner in which he proposes to get into the courts does not transpire, but talking about civil courts suggests the possibility of something different from the farce that has been dribbling its nastiness on the public for so long. That is a relief.

From now till sometime in November the French Assembly is to have a recess. This gives all the rest of the world a recess. The Republic, the Septennate, the Monarchy, the Empire, all must be comparatively silent for three months and the brains of the civilized world can rest from the interminable and fruitless labor of trying to comprehend the riddle of French politics. Let the world and the newspapers in particular be thankful for a moment's respite.

The announcement is made that a new Administration organ is soon to be started at New York City. It is to be an eight page paper with a corps of writers heretofore engaged on the Times, which the paper has become entirely too free from the control of party cliques to be a good party organ. If the Administration can get along without the Times, there need be no apprehension that the Times can not get along without the Administration.

They say it was not the Grand Duke Nicholas, but Beecher that stole the Empress of Russia's diamonds and that Tilton is ready to prove the truth of the rumor by several respectable witnesses, including Victoria Woodhull.

The Republican State Central Committee of Nebraska have issued a call for a State Convention at Lincoln September 2d.

CITY.

A DASTARDLY ACT OF CRUELTY.—Early last Sunday morning the pet deer which is kept at Voos Villa was missed from its haunts. Search was made at once for the lost animal. At first it was supposed the deer had strayed from the grounds by one of the gates being left open. All conjecture as to the whereabouts of the missing animal was soon settled by finding its lifeless carcass lying in the bushes but a little distance from the house. On examination it was discovered that the deer's throat was cut. Some one during Saturday night had entered the enclosure and led the animal out and then deliberately cut its head nearly off. Malice against the owner of the deer or a wanton spirit of deviltry must have been the only motives which actuated the author of the cowardly deed. The offense appears in a worse light from the fact that the perpetrator did not remove the animal for its flesh. It was in fine condition and would have made a choice piece of venison. Mr Voos the owner prized the animal very highly and under the circumstances feels indignant. No clue of the perpetrator has been obtained yet.

TURKISH BATHS.—A new enterprise has been inaugurated in San Francisco known as a Turkish Bath House. The institution is to cost $100,000. The Chronicle thus speaks of Dr A M Loryea, who is to be Superintendent: "The new enterprise in this city is begun under the most promising auspices. Inside and out the old structure is to be over hauled and refitted, and when completed will in all respects be as good as if new.

COSTLY [illegible].—Two representatives of Portugese nationality named respectively Andrew Sacker and Antoine Merlin indulged in an altercation late on Tuesday evening in a hand to hand encounter. How and when the melee would have resulted is hard to predict had not a police officer stepped in between the belligerents and marched both off to jail. An investigation of this trivial misunderstanding took place in Police Court yesterday morning. Both parties were entered in the sum of $30—inclusive of costs—on the sustained charge of assault and battery. Merlin planked down the amount of his fine and was released. Sacker failed to exhibit the necessary circulating medium and was sent below among the "boys" for the space of 15 days.

RICH YOUNG MEN

[From the N Y Times.]

A few years ago there was exhibited in a foreign art gallery a picture which attracted an extraordinary amount of attention less on the ground of its artistic excellence than from the interest of the subject. On one side of the canvas was depicted a boy in the full bloom of youthful beauty on the other a haggard bloated slouching man Beneath were the words "Can they be the same?" A story which was published the other day vividly recalls this picture. The paragraph referred to the career of a young man whose exploits have long been the talk of Baltimore and who must we presume presently stand in a criminal dock on a capital charge. Readers of the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table will remember Dr Holmes' description of the young Marylander as a type of manly beauty. Samuel MacDonald might have sat for the portrait. Six years ago he was a splendid youth and when on coming of age, and into possession of his patrimony he gave a fete of unprecedented expense to celebrate that event, there were probably few of his guests who failed to regard him with something of envy "The world was all before him where to choose." He chose a career of wild excess, such as the Regent Orleans could scarcely have surpassed, and which has culminated in assassination.

The scandals created by his conduct in Baltimore at length drove him from that his native city and he took up his abode in Indiana, with which he had become familiar in hunting expeditions and where no doubt he rejoiced at being freed from that annoyance which the averted looks of kith and kin cause to even the most abandoned. Thence tidings reached Maryland of his orgies in the West. Surrounded by the most abandoned of both sexes his time was passed in hunting expeditions in the wild country within reach of his shooting lodge near Terre Haute exercises which seemed designed merely to whet his appetite for plunging, on his return into excesses recalling those committed in the last century at their retreat on the banks of the Thames by "the Monks of Medenham," over whose portal hung the motto which they so faithfully followed— Do anything you fancy.

Never before probably were such scenes of riotous and profuse prodigacy enacted on this soil as those in MacDonald's lodge, near Terre Haute and it has been calculated that in one year they absorbed $150,000. The career of this young reprobate will come home painfully to many parents. Rich youths are in this country a much greater difficulty to their friends than those less liberally provided for. Satan, the old hymn says, finds work for idle hands to do and the richer those hands are the worse is the work.

Fortunately indeed may wealthy families deem themselves who are without one of these black sheep. The social conditions here are not what they were when every man had to get a living. The class of rich young men is rapidly increasing. Every year there grow up those who know from the beginning that at most they need only play at working. Where is the safeguard for such men? Whole one family influences may do much but it is chiefly to be found in a liberal education. Only the educated know how to properly enjoy wealth and leisure and have no need of debauchery and the bottle to stifle the common ennui.

There is ample work for an educated affluent class in this country, work which they would achieve with credit and renown by the way. It has been said, and not without reason, that a superior class of Representatives used to come to Congress from many of the Southern States because the social and political conditions of those States were such as to produce a considerable number of men of wealth, leisure, and education, who turned to politics as the highest pursuit in which they could engage and this was why Virginia was the mother of Presidents. The war put an end to that state of things but there is no reason why the North should not now give the country men such as they. It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the rich that the success, prosperity perhaps very existence of the United States depends upon their giving their sons those advantages of education which do so much to form enlightened far sighted, and high minded statesmen.

SCANDAL No ——.

SELLING MASSES TO LIQUIDATE A CHURCH DEBT—A MOST UNMINISTERIAL WARFARE.

The Romish clergy of St Louis are engaged in a most unministerial warfare. For some time an indebtedness of $80,000 has been hanging over the congregation of St. Alphonsus' Church of that city. The people were not wealthy and the priests set about to discover some plan by which the debt could be cancelled without oppressing the laymen. Well knowing the superstitious estimation in which masses for the future safety of their souls were held by their ignorant followers, they decided to reduce the commodity to a present money value and sell it for any sum it might bring. The city was divided [illegible] hundred collectors were appointed to solicit and gather in. Cards were printed for the use of the collectors, bearing the promise that two hundred masses should be said for each person contributing one dollar or more for the liquidation of the church debt.

These promises were signed by Father Meredith, the priest of St Alphonsus, and the offer was published in the St Louis papers. Thus far all went swimmingly. But operations were hardly commenced when Father Henry pastor of St Lawrence O'Toole's church published a protest in the Globe, denouncing the scheme, and warning the people not to contribute. The committee having the collection in charge followed and branded Father Henry as a willful and malicious falsifier. Father Phelan editor of the Watchman (Romish) also wrote an article denunciatory of Father Henry. Now the latter has demanded an apology from Father Phelan, and has instituted suit against the committee for libel, laying his damages at $20,000.

Father Henry defends his story by asserting that the action of Father Meredith was in direct violation of the rules passed by the Second Plenary Council recently held in Baltimore. This council, in the plainest terms, forbid the solicitation of alms for the saying of masses, and more especially the publication of the fact in the newspapers. It is plain that Father Henry must have been actuated by some more worldly consideration than loyalty to the fiat of the council. It is probable that the collection of money in his parish without his consent was a bitter pill to him. It is evident that neither the council nor Father Henry cared so much for the traffic in masses as for the publication of the same, so that Protestants could use the fact against them. If it is a crime to sell masses at all it is as much a crime to sell them at the fixed price customary in the church as to barter them for alms for the purpose of paying a debt on a church edifice. And were this a sin it is no more criminal in its cast than the lottery schemes by which Father Henry's church sweeps money into its coffers at charity fairs as the gambler does in his back room den. This sale of assurance of the future happiness of human souls is in accordance with the whole animus of the Romish Church, and Father Henry is no true Roman Catholic when he cries out against it. With the divine power vested in priests, added to the arrogant presumption of most of them no astonishment would be created should Father Meredith secure the liquidation of the debt of St. Alphonsus even by selling select places in the new Jerusalem.—Cleveland Leader

BRISTOW'S PLAN FOR RESUMPTION OF SPECIE PAYMENTS — Washington, July 28 — The amount of coin in the Treasury is lower than it has been for some time. After deducting outstanding liabilities there remains but little over $11,000,000 available. It is thought there will not be any increase in the amount to be sold during the month of August over that of July. The currency balance in the Treasury is larger than at any time all last year being $17,000,000. The estimated revenue receipts for August is $9,000,000 which will give an available currency balance for August of $26,000,000 while disbursements it is believed will not exceed $16,500,000. Thus rendering an increase of gold sales entirely unnecessary. The friends of Secretary Bristow say it is his desire at as early a day as possible to suspend the sales of gold entirely and commence hoarding preparatory to the resumption of specie payment.

Concha received in the heat of the battle a wound in the face and dismounted to have the bleeding stopped. He had put his hand on the saddle and lifted his foot into the stirrup to remount when he received his fatal wound, the ball piercing him through and through. He spoke only once afterwards, saying "Kill [illegible] [illegible]."

The season between crops has yet hardly closed and as a consequence money is not in rapid circulation. The products of last season have been forwarded to the markets of consumption, and the money for them has passed into the hands of the bankers producers and shippers. The farmers are busy harvesting. The new crops have not begun to come in any volume, and but little cash comes from the interior to move them.

Latest news from the East say business is at a stand still and the leaders of the commercial and financial world are at the sea shore or in the mountains. These causes are sufficient to account for the quiet in financial circles. There are few borrowers at the banks, and rates of interest are unusually low. In short these are the days when everything seems unprofitable and in the language of the good book the grasshopper is a burden.

The candor with which the leading newspapers and periodicals of Great Britain acknowledge the decline of her trade, and the probability that it will result in the flow of capital to the United States, is worthy of notice. The London Railway Times recently said of the home investments offered in London for English capital "A vast amount of capital has accumulated in this country and the investments offering have considerably narrowed. It is felt that with a declining trade the continued growth of prosperity of the home railways must be at least temporarily checked, and that present quotations offer no margin for profitable investment. Every indication would lead us to believe that never before has there been so steady a demand for the better class of American securities and the reason is not far to seek. Unless, therefore, some new speculative mania, at present undeveloped seizes the public mind, the flow of a considerable portion of capital to those American companies whose home market has been destroyed by the late financial crisis, may be considered certain, and should sound securities generally be selected the result will be advantageous to all parties concerned."

The Wheat Crop.

During the last half of the month of June it is reported that some almost unprecedented cool weather occurred in Great Britain. Sharp frosts were had but some rains fell which did much good to Indian corn. The potatoes were sharply cut by the frosts, the more advanced wheat suffered injury and the date of harvest materially deferred. The prospects of the hay and root crops on account of drouth and other seasons, were poor—the chances being bad for even the second crop of hay. The farmers deliveries of wheat the week ended June 20th were 8,606 qrs, or over 18 per cent. less than for the corresponding week of 1873 and 15,523 qrs. less than the average of the same weeks 1870-8 inclusive.

In France the prospects of the crops the third week in June were most encouraging. Until near the close frequent general rains were had and these were followed by a return of the hot sun which was ripening plants rapidly. The damage to the rye by spring frosts was considered to have been fully repaired, and although the barley straw was short, the berry some of which had been cut was good. Stocks of native wheat in the interior were very low, most of the provincial markets being supplied with foreign grown. Reports from 90 provincial markets show during the week an advance at 10, no change at 33 and a decline at 31. In Hungary by latest dates, a fair average crop of wheat was expected.

New York papers of July 20th says the light arrivals there and at the Lake ports which had imparted so much activity to the Wheat market in that city the week before had been neutralized by the [illegible] of the [illegible] from Great Britain and the Continent and although the receipts were light and the rates of freight lower the reduced limits to the English orders and in some instances the withdrawal of orders have greatly added to the depression and heaviness and the business of the week has been very unsatisfactory. Early in the week the [illegible] protracted rains brought out buyers from the Continent and prices further improved, but a change in the weather on the Continent checked the demand and this coupled with the glowing accounts from the South and West of our own crops is very plain to be seen that the immediate future of prices must depend upon the weather in Great Britain and on the Continent. From our advices from Germany Austria and Russia, we think their crops will be below an average and in France they do not promise as well as they did a fortnight since but what the real damage has been by the recent floods is as yet impossible to state. It is very certain the root crops in Great Britain will be much below an average and this must be made good in some way from [illegible]. Our reports of the Wheat crop are favorable, with the exception of Minnesota, there the prospect is not so good but the surplus of the country will be large as we have harvested the finest crop of Winter Wheat ever known in this country, probably exceeding that of the previous year by 25,000,000 bushels. this of itself is cause for congratulation and assurance of better times in the future. this is the kind of inflation that we can stand without demoralising trade, but without a large foreign demand for it low prices seem inevitable.

A Grain Corner.

On the last ult there was another of those gigantic corners in Chicago that [illegible] that place such an unenviable notoriety. This time the corner was in oats and corn. The tirade [illegible] commenced on Friday and before it closed corn was run up to 85 cents a bushel and oats to 61 for Western [illegible], the [illegible] an advance of thirty three per cent. A [illegible] tch says that the speculation in corn was manipulated by a combination that controlled [illegible] bushels. The movement in oats is said to be [illegible] upon the scarcity of the article. The combination was successful in both operations an immense quantity of grain changing hands. According to a Chicago dispatch, the speculation had run its [illegible], for oats were quoted at 67½ cents per bushel and corn at 61 cents. The best feature of this affair is that the whole thing was confined to grain speculators, and that the markets in surrounding cities were not affected.

RICH YOUNG MEN

From the N.Y. Times

A few years ago there was exhibited in a foreign art [illegible] a picture which attracted [illegible] an amount of attention less on the ground of artistic excellence than from the interest of the subject. On one side of the canvas was depicted a boy in the full bloom [illegible] on the other a haggard [illegible] youthful man. Beneath were [illegible] the same. A story [illegible] published the other day vividly re[illegible] picture. The paragraph referred to the career of [illegible] whose exploits have [illegible] the talk of Baltimore and who [illegible] presently stand in a crim[illegible] capital charge. Readers of the [illegible] will remember Dr Holmes' description of the young Maryland [illegible] as a type of manly beauty. Samuel MacDonald might have sat for the portrait. Six years ago he was a splendid youth, and when on coming of age, and into possession of [illegible] he gave a fete of unprecedented expense to celebrate that event, there were [illegible] few of his guests who failed to regard him with something of envy. "The world was all before him where to choose." He chose a career of wild excess such as the Regent Orleans could scarcely have surpassed, and which has culminated in assassination.

The scandals created by his conduct in Baltimore at length drove him from that his native city, and he took up his abode in Indiana [illegible] he had become familiar in hunting expeditions and where no doubt rejoiced [illegible] freed from the annoyance which the [illegible] even the most abandoned. Thence tidings reached Maryland of his orgies in the West. Surrounded by the most abandoned of both sexes [illegible] time was passed in hunting expeditions in the wild country within reach of his shooting lodge near Terre Haute, exercises which [illegible] merely to whet his appetite for plunging on his return into excesses recalling those committed in the last century at their retreat on the banks of the Thames by the Monks of Medenham, over whose portal hung the motto which they so faithfully followed—"Do anything you fancy."

Never before probably were such scenes of riotous and profuse prodigacy enacted on this soil as those in MacDonald's lodge, near Terre Haute, and it has been calculated that in one year they absorbed $150,000. The career of this young reprobate will come home painfully to many parents. Rich youths are in this country a much greater difficulty to their friends than those less liberally provided for. Satan, the old hymn says, finds work for idle hands to do, and the richer those hands are the worse is the work.

[illegible] indeed, many wealthy families deem themselves who are without one of these black sheep. The social conditions here are not what they were when every man had to get a living. The class of rich young men is rapidly increasing. Every year there grow up those who know from the beginning that at most they need only play at working. Where is the safeguard for such men? While one family influences may do much but it is chiefly to be found in a liberal education. Only the educated know how to properly enjoy wealth and leisure and have no need of debauchery and the bottle to stifle the ennui.

There is ample work for an educated affluent class in this country, work which they would achieve position and renown by doing. It has been said, and not without reason, that a superior class of Representatives used to come to Congress from many of the Southern States because the social and political conditions of those States were such as to produce a considerable number of men of wealth, leisure, and education who turned to politics as the highest pursuit in which they could engage, and this was why Virginia was the mother of Presidents. The war put an end to that state of things, but there is no reason why the North should not now give the country men such as they. It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the rich that the success, prosperity, perhaps very existence of the United States depends upon their giving their sons these advantages of education which do so much to form enlightened, far-sighted, and high-minded statesmen.

SCANDAL NO. —.

SELLING MASSES TO LIQUIDATE A CHURCH DEBT—A MOST UNMINISTERIAL WARFARE.

The Romish clergy of St Louis are engaged in a most unministerial warfare. For some time an indebtedness of $90,000 has been hanging over the congregation of St Alphonsus' Church of that city. The people were not wealthy and the priests set about to discover some plan by which the debt could be cancelled without oppressing the laymen. Well knowing the superstitious estimation in which masses for the future safety of their souls were held by their ignorant followers, they decided to reduce this commodity to a present money value and sell it for any sum it might bring. The city was divided into districts. Over three hundred collectors were appointed to solicit and gather in. Cards were printed for the use of the collectors bearing the promise that two hundred masses should be said for each person contributing one dollar or more for the liquidation of the church debt.

These promises were signed by Father Meredith, the priest at St. Alphonsus' and the offer was published in the St Louis papers. Thus far it went swimmingly. But operations were hardly commenced when Father Henry, [illegible] of St. Lawrence O'Toole's church published a protest in the Globe, denouncing the scheme, and warning the people not to contribute. The committee having the collection in charge followed and branded Father Henry as a vile and malicious falsifier. Father Phelan, editor of the Watchman (Romish) also wrote an article denunciatory of Father Henry. Now the latter has demanded an apology from Father Phelan and has instituted suit against the committee for libel, laying his damages at $20,000.

Father Henry defends his story by asserting that the action of Father Meredith was in direct violation of the rules passed by the Second Plenary Council recently held in Baltimore. This council, in the plainest terms, forbid the solicitation of alms for the saying of masses and more especially the publication of the fact in the newspapers. It is plain that Father Henry must have been actuated by some more worldly consideration than loyalty to the fiat of the council. It is probable that the collection of money in his parish without his consent was a bitter pill to him. It is evident that neither the council nor Father Henry cared so much for the traffic in masses as for the publication of the same, so that Protestants could use the fact against them. If it is a crime to sell masses at all it is as much a crime to sell them at the fixed price customary in the church as to barter them for cash for the purpose of paying a debt on a church edifice. And were this a sin it is no more common in its cast than the lottery schemes by which Father Henry's church sweeps money into its coffers at charity fairs as the gambler does it his back room den. This sale of assurance of the future happiness of human souls is in accordance with the whole animus of the Romish Church, and Father Henry is no true Roman Catholic when he cries out against it. With the divine power vested in priests added to the arrogant presumption of most of them, no astonishment would be created should Father Meredith secure the liquidation of the debt of St. Alphonsus even by selling select places in the new Jerusalem.—Cleveland Leader

BRISTOW'S PLAN FOR RESUMPTION OF SPECIE PAYMENTS.—Washington, July 28.—The [illegible] coin in the Treasury is lower than it has been for some time. After deducting [illegible] liabilities there remains but little over $11,000,000 available. It is thought there will not be any increase in the amount to be [illegible] during the month of August over that [illegible] July. The currency balance in the Treasury is larger than at any time all last year, being $17,000,000. The estimated revenue [illegible] for August is $1,000,000, which will give an available currency balance for August of $2[illegible],000,000, while disbursements, it is believed, will not exceed $16,000,000. Thus rendering an increase of gold sales entirely unnecessary. The friends of Secretary Bristow say it is his desire at as early a day as possible to suspend the sales of gold entirely and commence hoarding preparatory to the resumption of specie payment.

Concha received in the heat of the battle a wound in the face and dismounted to have the bleeding stopped. He had put his hand on the saddle and lifted his foot into the stirrup [illegible] when he received his fatal wound, the ball piercing him through and through. He spoke only once afterwards, saying [illegible]

The season between crops [illegible] closed and as a consequence money is not in rapid circulation. The products of last season have been forwarded to the market of consumption and the money for them has passed into the hands of the bankers, producers and shippers. The farmers are busy harvesting. The new crops have not begun to come in any volume and but little will come from the interior to move them.

Latest news from the East say finances [illegible] stand still and the leaders of the commercial and financial world are at the sea shore or in the mountains. These causes are sufficient to account for the great quiet in financial circles. There are few borrowers at the banks and rates of interest are unusually low. In short, these are the days when everything seems unprofitable and in the language of the good book the grasshopper is a burden.

The candor with which the leading newspapers and periodicals of Great Britain acknowledge the decline of her trade, and the probability that it will result in the flow of capital to the United States is worthy of notice. The London Railway Times recently said of the home investments offered in London for English capital: "A vast amount of capital has accumulated in this country and the investments offering have considerably narrowed. It is felt that with a declining trade the continued growth of prosperity of the home railways must be at least temporarily checked and that present quotations offer no margin for profitable investment. Every indication would lead us to believe that never before has there been so steady a demand for the better class of American securities and the reason is not far to seek. Unless therefore, some new speculative mania, at present undeveloped, seizes the public mind, the flow of a considerable portion of capital to those American companies whose home market has been destroyed by the late financial crisis may be considered certain and should sound securities generally be selected the result will be advantageous to all parties concerned."

The Wheat Crop.

During the last half of the month of June it is reported that some almost unprecedented cool weather occurred in Great Britain. Sharp frosts were had but some rains fell which did much good to Indian corn. The potatoes were sharply cut by the frosts, the more advanced wheat suffered injury and the date of harvest materially deferred. The prospects of the hay and root crops on account of drouth and other reasons, were poor—the chances being bad for even the second crop of hay. The farmers deliveries of wheat the week ended June 20th were 5,805 qrs, or over 18 per cent. less than for the corresponding week of 1873 and 1[illegible] qrs. less than the average of the same weeks 18[illegible] inclusive.

In France the prospects of the crops the third week in June were most encouraging. Until near the close frequent general rains were had and these were followed by a return of the hot sun which was ripening plants rapidly. The damage to the rye by spring frosts was considered to have been fully repaired and although the barley straw was short, the berry, some of which had been cut, was good. Stocks of native wheat in the interior were very low, most of the provincial markets being supplied with foreign grown. Reports from 95 provincial markets show during the week an advance at 10, no change at [illegible] and a decline at [illegible]. In Hungary at latest dates, a fair average crop of wheat was expected.

New York papers of July 20th says the light arrivals there and at the Lake ports which had imparted so much activity to the Wheat market in that city the week before had been neutralized by the character of the advices from Great Britain and the Continent, and although the receipts were light and the rates of freight lower, the reduced limits to the English orders and in some instances the withdrawal of orders have greatly added to the depression and heaviness and the business of the week has been very unsatisfactory. Early in the week the advices from France and [illegible] of very heavy protracted rains brought out buyers from the Continent and prices further improved, later a change in the weather on the Continent checked the demand and this coupled with the glowing accounts from the South and West of our own crops is very plain to be seen that the immediate future of prices must depend upon the weather in Great Britain and on the Continent. From our advices from Germany, Austria and Russia, we think their crops will be below an average, and in France they do not promise as well as they did a fortnight since but what the real damage has been by the recent floods is as yet impossible to state. It is very certain the root crops in Great Britain will be much below an average and this must be made good in some way from other countries. Our reports of the Wheat crop are favorable with the exception of Minnesota; there the prospect is not so good but the surplus of the country will be large as we have harvested the finest crop of Winter Wheat ever known in this country, probably exceeding that of the previous year by 25,000,000 bushels. This of itself is cause for congratulation and assurance of better times in the future; this is the kind of inflation that we can stand without demoralizing trade, but without a large foreign demand for it low prices seem inevitable.

A Grain Corner.

On the 31st ult. there was another of those gigantic corners in Chicago that have given that place such an unenviable notoriety. This time the corner was in oats and corn. The [illegible] commenced on Friday and before it closed corn was run up to [illegible] cents a bushel and oats to $1 for Western mixed, the latter an advance of thirty-three per cent. A dispatch says that the speculation in corn was manipulated by a combination that controlled 7,000,000 bushels. The movement in oats is said to be based upon the scarcity of the article. The combination was successful in both operations, an immense quantity of grain changing hands. According to a Chicago dispatch the speculation had run its tether, for oats were quoted at 87¼ cents per bushel, and corn at 61 cents. The best feature of this affair are that the whole thing was confined to grain speculators and that the markets in surrounding cities were not affected.
